

Governor Dewey Breaks Crossing Ground, Praises Wicks for 'Locking Up' $600,000,000

A Mayor for All the People

(An Editorial)

The local political campaign continues to re-emphasize the courageous and progressive administration of Mayor Newkirk. When in his judgment a decision was to be made that would result in the most good for the largest number of people, Mayor Newkirk made that decision.

With the city faced with a financial crisis, he had the choice of levying sales and business taxes or make a general increase in assessments to broaden the tax base. The latter, although not the best vote-getting decision to make in an election year, was the most equitable and the most progressive. And Mayor Newkirk made the decision.

On the question of housing, everyone knows where Mayor Newkirk stands. He pledged two years ago when he first assumed office that he would fight for housing. A survey revealed a critical housing shortage, and his stand is a matter of public record. Here again was another decision to make that could not possibly please all the people of the city at the time of making the decision. And Mayor Newkirk made the decision.

What about the widening of streets in the business area. Once again there was a stand to take that could not possibly please all the people at the time of making the decision. Was this a good decision? The shoppers and the motorists have the answer. And Mayor Newkirk made the decision.

With the election of Mayor Newkirk assured because of his courageous and progressive administration, the voters should not overlook the fact that it is also important to have a board of aldermen who will work in harmony with the mayor for the best interests of the city and should see to it that the men named by the Republican Party in the various wards are elected to office.

The Republican Party realizing that the head of the board of aldermen should be a man capable of assisting the mayor in his plans for a more progressive Kingston, selected Joseph Kelly as its candidate for the office of alderman-at-large. Mr. Kelly is very well known throughout the entire city for his keen and intensive interest in civic affairs over a long period of years. A very popular candidate, he is eminently qualified to fill the office of president of the Common Council.

Rigid Controls Placed on Goods

Strategic Goods Will Not Go Anywhere; to Halt Soviet Acquisition

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—The government slapped rigid controls on shipments of strategic goods to practically the whole world today to prevent re-shipping to the Soviet bloc.

Communism in China and Latin America particularly were covered by the new rules.

Officials told a reporter the step was taken more with the idea of averting future re-shipment difficulties than because of any great current traffic in re-shipments to Russian-dominated areas.

Hitherto the Commerce Department has applied these rigid controls only to Europe and adjacent areas, mostly along the southern rim of the Mediterranean.

The new action extends the control powers to exports to any place in the world except Canada, which has always been in a relatively control-free class of its own, even in war.

Strategic goods, the department means for the most part industrial items that might contribute to "war potential" of the Soviet.

Export of military materials is rigidly controlled too but licenses for these are handled by the State Department.

The Commerce Department handles export licenses for goods covered by today's new rules.

This gives it a chance to "screen" proposed shipments. Thus it can deny shipment privileges where it suspects goods, apparently destined for non-Russian areas, are in fact to be re-shipped to Soviet-dominated regions.

Direct shipments of strategic items to the Soviet Union have been under virtual ban since March, 1948.

10 Airmen Die in Crash

Hamilton, Bermuda, Nov. 4 (AP)—A B-29 Superfortress, crippled by engine trouble, crashed into the sea a mile from shore last night. The big plane caught fire after hitting the water and 10 of the 13 U. S. airmen aboard were killed. Four crewmen managed to jump after the stricken bomber plowed into the waves, but one died of burns a few minutes later. The three survivors were taken to the U. S. base hospital at nearby Kindley field with minor injuries.

According to John P. O'Connell, chairman of the New York State Liquor Authority, grocery stores and other premises licensed to sell beer in Ulster county for off-premises consumption are prohibited from selling beer while the polls are open on Election Day, Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Ching Plans Parley With John Lewis

Becomes First Step in New U. S. Efforts to End Strike Among Coal Miners

Lewis Makes Bid

U.M.W. Chief Offers to Negotiate Two-State Pact

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Cyrus S. Ching today arranged a meeting with John L. Lewis—the first step in new government efforts to end the coal strike.

Word of plans for a meeting this afternoon was learned by reliable sources shortly after Lewis made a new bid to effect a settlement with a part of the soft coal industry. Lewis offered to negotiate in Chicago tomorrow for an agreement covering mines in the two states of Illinois and Indiana.

Ching, the federal mediation chief, arranged to visit Lewis at the Mine Workers' headquarters here at an unspecified hour in the afternoon.

This afternoon's conference, authoritative sources indicated, may pave the way to a joint meeting between Lewis and coal operators next week in Washington.

The leader of the striking miners had made unsuccessful bids earlier this week for negotiations looking toward a settlement with Indiana operators.

In effect, he expanded that to a two-state proposal with a telegram today to Gov. Adlai Stevenson of Illinois. His proposal was for negotiations starting tomorrow afternoon in Chicago.

Lewis said that if Indiana coal operators can not be brought into the two-state deal, a wage agreement perhaps could be negotiated for Illinois' 40,000 miners alone.

His wife was in response to an appeal by Governor Stephenson on Tuesday, addressed both to Lewis and coal operators, for a resumption of mining to relieve widening distress in Illinois.

There have been increasing signs, that Lewis would like to achieve a settlement with some one segment of mine operators and use it as a lever for prying an agreement to his liking from the whole industry.

Union men think that pattern is taking shape in the steel strike where C.I.O. President Philip Murray has reached a settlement of the steelworkers' pensions dispute with Bethlehem, the industry's No. 2 producer.

Pressure is growing for government action in the coal situation if the operators and Lewis make no progress toward an agreement.

A highly-placed government official said some government move is likely within the next 24 hours. Some operators said they expected to be called soon to government-sponsored talks.

Lewis told Stephenson that he was proposing a two-state agreement because "it may be more acceptable to some operators who

Governor Dewey Lifts First Shovel to Start Project

Kingston had one of its biggest days in decades when Governor Thomas E. Dewey broke ground yesterday for the project which will eliminate the Broadway railroad crossing. The governor stepped from the speakers' platform to lift the first shovelful of dirt in the project area, after explaining how money for the project was made available from a state surplus fund. Near him, left to right, are: James S. Bixby, district engineer of the state public works department, who is in charge of the project; Bertram M. Tallamy, commissioner of the state public works department; State Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and Chief Judge of the State Court of Appeals John T. Loughran. (Freeman Photo)

Two Persons Are Stabbed to Death in New York Hotel

Woman Listed as Clerk in State Department; Chinese Attached to U.N. Staff

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—An attractive woman employee of the "Voice of America" and a Chinese clerk from the United Nations were found stabbed to death today in a blood-spattered room in a Broadway hotel.

Assistant Medical Examiner Nathan Ludwig said it was murder and suicide.

New York, Nov. 4 (AP)—Two persons tentatively identified as a woman State Department clerk and a male Chinese employee of the United Nations were found stabbed to death today in a suite at the Hotel Alamac.

The woman's body was nude and the man's body, sprawled across a bed, had a knife wound only in shorts. A hunting knife was found on the floor. Police said it might be a case of murder and suicide.

In the woman's pocketbook was a State Department card issued to Murhane Balunska Zolyak. It (Continued on Page 10, Col. 6)

Gabrielson Attacks Truman on Stand

G.O.P. Chairman Declares People Pay More in Taxes Than Food Costs

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Guy Gabrielson, Republican National chairman, said today the Truman brand of government is taking more from the American people than it costs them to eat and is piling up debts for their children to pay.

Gabrielson cracked back in a statement at what he called President Truman's "vulgarification" of the record of the G.O.P. 80th Congress in an address at St. Paul last night.

The President's address—calling on lawmakers to enact his fair deal program as a "staunch shield" against Communism—and Gabrielson's reply were preliminary firing in a 1950 congressional election campaign that is beginning to look like one of the hottest in history.

Reports from Mr. Truman's homebound train said he was so pleased with the reception he had on his trip to the Twin Cities that he is more inclined than ever to make a full-fledged stump tour next year in behalf of congressional candidates who will back his program.

There are signs, too, that foreign policy may yet develop into a major issue. The foreign policy split among Republicans points that way.

Gabrielson said President Truman backs an administration which is taxing the American people every year to a sum greater than the nation's total food bill. (Continued on Page 10, Col. 8)

Wicks Calls Him Great Governor; Savings by State Used for Crossing

Prior to the ground breaking ceremonies Thursday afternoon, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, attending a luncheon at the Governor Clinton Hotel, reminded those present that the Broadway crossing elimination project was financed not by a bond issue, but by money saved by the state during the war.

"That is the way we ought to do it," he said, urging Americans regardless of their political affiliations to "set their minds against deficit spending." He lashed out against the Brannan plan of government price support for farm products and against the proposed compulsory medical insurance, warning that

Crossing Project To Start First Part Next Week

First Phase of Operations Will Be Removing Top of Trolley Tunnel

The New York office of Lipsitt, Inc., said today that work on the Broadway crossing project will start next Monday or Tuesday if all needed equipment is on location by that time.

John Dugan, superintendent of construction for the contractor, said this morning that a first phase of the work will be removing the top from the old trolley tunnel under railroad avenue, which will be filled in and closed with dirt from the project.

Excavation for the trunk sewer line on Greenhill avenue is also scheduled for an early start. This will be dug to the depth of the new street level of Broadway which is to go under the crossing and excavation will begin on the southern end of Greenhill avenue.

The contractor has established an office in upstairs quarters on Railroad avenue near the bowling alley.

City Judge R.J. Mino Reports On Functions of His Office

City Judge Raymond J. Mino, Republican candidate for election, outlined the duties of his office in an address Thursday night and told of the importance of the position as regards local human relations.

Judge Mino spoke as follows: "About a week ago, I spoke to you over the facilities of this station concerning the work and functions of our City Court and the important part this department of our city plays in the daily life of many of our citizens. At that time, I outlined to you the history, functions and powers of our City Court, the work and duties of the city judge and the necessary qualifications a person seeking the office must have. I pointed out also that, in my opinion, the City Court could well be called a court of human relations because the majority of the problems brought before the court are usually those dealing with human relations and that these problems provide the greatest in the City Court and conscientiously trying to sort out what is material and what is irrelevant, is one of the tasks of our city judge.

Since last speaking to you, many people expressed to me their surprise at learning how broad a field is covered by the City Court's jurisdiction and how full are its functions. This may be an indication of a fault which is common to all of us, namely, our tendency to take what we have in our government for granted. Let me assure you that the City Court is one of the most vital links in the chain of democracy which we enjoy in this country today. I say this because the City Court represents everyday justice for everyday people. Our country remains one of the few nations in the world where everyone enjoys the right to bring his problems before an impartial court. We

'Time of His Life'

Governor Tells Pleasure at Seeing Planning Come to Fruition

State money for the Broadway crossing project comes from the $600,000,000 surplus "locked up" for postwar purposes, Governor Thomas E. Dewey said here yesterday.

The governor, who broke ground for the local project before a crowd estimated at 3,000 told them that "Your own Senator Wicks was one of the courageous leaders, who helped keep the money in reserve, and I want to thank him for it in your presence." Wicks, prior to being elected Senate Majority Leader, was for eight years Senate Finance Chairman.

The ground-breaking ceremony at 3 p. m. followed appearance of the governor before local service clubs in the Governor Clinton Hotel, and included brief addresses by State Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and Corporation Counsel James G. Connelly. Invocation was by the Rev. John Flaherty, representing Mgr. Martin J. Drury, pastor of St. Mary's Church, and benediction was by the Rev. J. Dean Dykstra, president of the Kingston Ministerial Association.

No Happier Occasion

"I cannot think of a happier occasion on which to visit Kingston, and I am delighted to see the promises of 20 years brought to fruition now," Governor Dewey said following his introduction by Senator Wicks.

It sometimes takes about 20 years to bring plans and dreams to fruition, he said, and he told of work recently accomplished in 26 mental hospitals, highway projects and other state work recently made possible.

Speaking of the efforts of his administration to be thrifty, the governor said: "We suddenly discovered that we had a surplus which nobody had seen for years. I asked the legislature to keep it—not to use it to reduce taxes at that time," because of possible effects on inflationary trends, "and I asked them not to squander it," for other purposes.

Instead, said the governor, he asked them "to lock it up for later use as a postwar reconstruction and rehabilitation fund."

Then after the war, he said, it developed that "we had saved a lot so we could start doing the things which people had wanted done for 20 years or more." These projects he said included highway work, bettering mental hospitals, and other similar work.

Bids for Children

The money made it possible, he stressed to get the children "who had been on the floors of mental hospitals into beds," and because of this and other work, he said, "I have been having the time of my life watching the dreams come to fruition."

The nearly $600,000 for the local crossing project he said, comes from that "money in the bank."

"When I asked the legislature to lock that money up," he stressed, "we had a good majority of fine, strong, brave men, and one of the leaders was your own Senator Wicks."

A "lot of people," including

Fire Under Control

Pasadena, Calif., Nov. 4 (AP)—Weary Los Angeles county firemen fought today to douse their third serious brush fire in the last week. With southern California abnormally hot and dry (it was 85 to 95 yesterday), the latest blaze broke out and burned 100 acres in the Flintridge Hills near the Rose Bowl. Barring an upsurge of wind, firemen expected to have it under control today. It was reported "well controlled" last night.

BILLIONS IN BONDS—At the end of August, 1949, the American people held $4,700,000,000 in United States Savings Bonds of Series E, F and G. The chart above, based on data from the National Industrial Conference Board, shows how total bonds outstanding rose steadily from $47,200,000,000 at the start of 1947, in spite of heavy cashing-in of bonds.

SAVINGS BOND SALES—During the first eight months of 1949, the excess of bond sales over redemptions brought $1,300,000,000 into the U. S. Treasury. The chart above, based on data from the National Industrial Conference Board, shows comparison of monthly sales and redemptions of Series E, F and G bonds from Jan., 1947, through Aug., 1948. The sharp increase in sales in July, 1948, was caused by a special temporary offering of E and G bonds to certain professions in excess of limitations then in effect.

STORAGE FOR UNCLE SAM'S CORN—At Waverlet, Iowa, the government is building storage bins to receive about 740,000 bushels of corn bought by the Commodity Credit Corporation. Eighty cylindrical steel bins, like those above, hold 3380 bushels each, 15 wooden bins will hold 60,000 bushels, and six Quonset-type buildings will hold another 60,000. As each storage unit is completed, it is filled with corn from the 1948 crop, freeing farmers' own bins for this year's big crop.

BABSON on BUSINESS

Babson Park, Mass., Nov. 4.—I wonder if we spend enough time studying the advertisements in our daily or weekly newspaper? In addition to comparing prices charged by different concerns for the same articles in any given week, there is another most interesting comparison.

If you will make a scrap book of advertisements over a period of years, you will become an ardent believer in Newton's Law of Action and Reaction. One of the best clues of the financial situation is not the stock market, but the relative number of those concerns advertising to hire people, compared with the number of persons wanting jobs. It would be a fine thing for newspapers to summarize these figures each week and report thereon as they now report the rainfall, temperature and stock market averages.

Business and investment analysts get some of their best information from comparing the advertisements of goods and prices. I am especially interested in watching the bankruptcy sales of businesses which appear in most Sunday newspapers. During the war, there were few such and when the yield appeared they referred mostly to garages, filling stations and other business real estate. Often then, in this column, I advised readers to buy some of these bargains. Those who followed my advice can doubt or triple their money today. Since the war I have been telling readers that a time will come again when more bargains can be obtained.

How to Get Bargains
These bankruptcy advertisements are now increasing; but the time to buy has—in my opinion—not yet come. So many veterans have gone into business about which they know nothing that there may be million business failures during the next few years. Some will be in your own community. Hence, now is a time to build up a good bank account in order to take advantage of these bargains if they later appear. More money has been made with Patience than with any other thing. The "Business Community" may increase every week for the next two or three years.

Next to good bank accounts, the best investments which parents can make today are in practical education. I don't mean an ordinary college cultural education, but rather one that trains young people for some specific work—so they will be an expert in some trade, business or profession. This is what I am trying to do for young people at Babson Institute, Wellesley College and Utopia College—catalogs of which I will send freely to any reader. These three colleges are purely non-profit institutions which I founded largely for my millions of newspaper readers.

Importance of Character Education

But to whatever college you send your young people be sure it is a Christian college, supported by those who believe in the church and for all that is good for which the church stands. Colleges are now eliminating Communist teachers; but they should also dispense with all who do not believe in God, the church and the power of sane prayer. I do think there are too many such who are teaching our young people today. Protestants blame the Catholics for wanting their own schools, and yet the Protestants are permitting the public schools to eliminate religion altogether.

But to return to advertisements: do not be content with reading the "Business Opportunity" advertisements in your newspapers and magazines, or even the advertisements of clothes, foods, refrigerators and radios. Also read the advertisements and news columns relating to schools, colleges and churches. The future of your children depends on their character, education and health—much more than on styles, deodorants or hair oils. If women would give the thought to the inside of their heads that they give to the outside, most of America's troubles would be over. If we men would read the editorials of our newspapers with the care which we give to reading the sports pages, there would be little unemployment and no advertised "bargains" of bankrupt businesses.

To Repair White House

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—A Philadelphia firm has been awarded the contract for repair of the White House. The award was made to John McShain and Co., which offered the low bid on the work—$100,000 plus the actual cost. The job must be completed within 22 months. Total estimated cost, for which Congress already has appropriated funds is $5,400,000. Richard E. Daugherty told the American Society of Civil Engineers yesterday that he inspected the executive mansion in 1948, while President Truman was still living in it, and found it an "obvious fire-trap." Mr. Truman's new balcony, he said, "was the only safe thing on the second floor."

Nervous Disorder Hits O'Neill's Writing Career

Marblehead, Mass., Nov. 4 (AP)—A nervous disorder apparently has closed the writing career of Eugene O'Neill, Nobel prize-winning dramatist and author of several Broadway hits. His wife, Carlotta, said last night that he is suffering from Parkinson's disease and that it is "getting progressively worse." She said his hands tremble so badly he is unable to write in longhand—his customary form of composing—and efforts to dictate have not been too successful. The disease also has affected the 61-year-old playwright's speech, his wife said, and he prefers to stay in seclusion on his seaside estate here. He bought the place about a year ago. His last play, "The Ice Man Cometh," was produced on Broadway in 1946. Holder of the Nobel Prize in Literature and three Pulitzer prizes, O'Neill also has authored "Emperor Jones," "Strange Interlude," "Anna Christie," "Mourning Becomes Electra," and "The Hairy Ape."

Television network programs are carried both by microwave radio relay and by special telephone cable known as coaxial.

The team of Anna and Andy, on the air since 1935, started out as Sam and Henry.

More people should learn to tell their dollars where to go instead of asking them where they went.—Roger Babson.

CURE FOR COLDS

The Federal Food and Drug Administration has released some of the anti-histamine drugs for sale without a doctor's prescription, and apparently they are to be sold as a remedy for the common cold. The anti-histamines are quite new, so new that rare is the household dictionary which will give the reader any help with the name. They were developed in connection with the study of allergies, chiefly in hay fever and asthma, and are drugs which are found to have the ability to oppose or neutralize histamine, a mysterious substance produced within the body of a person when he is exposed to something to which he is allergic. Not very much is known as yet about either histamine or the anti-histamine drugs.

It would be a gross exaggeration of medical opinion to say that the anti-histamines are a cure for the common cold. So far as has been established, there is no cure for the cold; there are only medicines which relieve the symptoms, while the cure remains up to the natural processes of the body. Because of the similarity between the symptoms of cold and those of many allergies, experiments were made with the use of anti-histamines in treating colds. The first clinical experiments were made only a year or two ago, and it is far too early to jump to conclusions, but some doctors have believed the results significant enough to be excited about. In cases where the drug was administered within a matter of hours after the very first sign of a cold appeared, remarkably few colds developed. This is enough indeed almost to justify thinking in terms of the word "cure".

Sight should not be lost of the hazards attached to the use of anti-histamines. In normal dosage they sometimes produce the effect of a potent sleeping pill, and there are inherent dangers in overdosage of any drug which alters the chemistry of the body. The use of these drugs, and the hope that they may banish the cold, should be approached with caution.

PROTECTION FROM RACERS

The National Aeronautic Association has set up new rules intended to reduce the possibility of injury to bystanders and damage to their property from closed course racing of airplanes, races in which the planes circle around a course marked by pylons or other markers. The new rules require the approval of surrounding communities before sanction will be given to such a race which takes place beyond the limits of an established air field.

The new rules were prompted by an accident at the national air races in Cleveland in September, when the racing pilot William Odom was killed in a crash which also caused the deaths of two bystanders, serious injury to a third and the destruction of a home. Almost everyone concerned with aviation wants racing continued, at least in some forms, because of the impetus it gives to technical development. If racing continues some accidents are inevitable; it would be almost impossible to make a set of rules which would infallibly prevent them. But it does not have to be an inevitable concomitant that bystanders and their property should be involved.

These new regulations, if communities refuse to approve racing over settled areas, might provide at least part of the needed protection for people on the ground.

FISHERMAN'S LUCK

Hooking a big fish is officially a matter of luck. Anglers who disagree can take the matter up with the Post Office Department, which had to decide whether it is luck or skill. The officials, granting that it may take skill to land the big fellow, refused to concede it's anything but luck that gets one hook rather than another into the fish's mouth. A fishing derby with entrance fee and prize for the biggest fish therefore is a lottery, and advertising one through the mails will just get someone in trouble. Apparently the fisherman of the house might as well leave unfinished that lure over

'These Days'

PROOF AGAINST BIGOTRY

Bigotry is a hateful word. It represents blind hate, an unwillingness to recognize the inalienable right of an individual to the pattern of his own life.

In a political campaign, candidates often stoop to actions which they, as gentlemen, would ordinarily abhor. For instance, when Herbert Lehman, Democratic and Socialist candidate for United States senator in New York, calls John Foster Dulles, his Republican opposite, a bigot, he acts as he would not in his own home, because he knows that the charge is a lie, and even more, he would have difficulty in explaining why his banking firm retained Mr. Dulles's law firm, if that firm is headed by a bigot. Such a charge is irresponsible, carried to an excess that only helps to establish the almost universal denigration of our elective process. It ought to make all Americans, not only New Yorkers, wonder where we are heading for.

In this connection, I want to record an incident which completely disproves the charge of bigotry and establishes how loosely politicians talk. The following report was made to the Jewish War Veterans by its then national commander, General Julius Klein, in reference to the Israel plank of the 1948 Republican platform. The proponents of the plank favorable to Israel felt that if the Republicans produced a wishy-washy one, the Democrats would do the same. The heart of the problem was the attitude of John Foster Dulles. Herewith the report of General Julius Klein, which came to me at the time from one who received it.

The night before the final session of the Resolutions Committee, it appeared that it would be necessary to obtain the support of Governor Dewey and John Foster Dulles, in order to win out against the State Department clique. We met in the private office of Senator Taft in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, and Mr. George Sokolsky, who was assisting us tirelessly in this fight, volunteered to contact Governor Dewey. He telephoned Paul Lockwood and Governor Dewey about 3 o'clock in the morning and explained our position and opposition to the (wishy-washy) plank, and the danger the Republican Party would face by scuttling (Rabbi) Silver's plank. It was then arranged for Mr. Sokolsky to meet with Governor Dewey and Mr. Dulles in the morning.

Despite all the obstacles thrown in our way, final victory was achieved. It was hardly necessary for me to discuss the question of Israel with John Foster Dulles. He, his brother, Allen Dulles, and Roger W. Straus had long before determined their attitude toward the establishment of Israel. They were wholeheartedly for it and when I called on Dulles, shortly before the meeting of the Resolutions Committee, he said that he believed firmly in Israel and that there was no need to influence him in that direction.

Other men may, now that Israel is a success, claim that they did this and that; actually, so far as the Republican plank is concerned, credit must go to Senator Robert A. Taft and Governor Thomas E. Dewey, to John Foster Dulles and Austin Wood, publisher of West Virginia newspapers. These are the men who united on this particular plank and put it over.

I think that this is important, because whether one favors Israel or not, the attitude of John Foster Dulles at that time is a complete disproof of the charge of bigotry.

Another point needs to be made. Avery Dulles, son of John Foster Dulles, was converted to the Roman Catholic Church while a student at Harvard. After serving in the navy, he determined to become a priest and entered the Society of Jesus, in whose seminary outside of Baltimore, Maryland, he is now studying. The story is now being spread, as part of the indecent charge of bigotry, that the father, John Foster Dulles, has denied his son because of the change of faith, and that they do not see each other. I think that those who spread this scandalous and inhuman gossip as lies.

The unsubstantiated charge of bigotry is not within the American traditions of fair play, of recognition of religious individuality. (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ALLERGIC CONDITIONS

While most of us have seen cases of hives (urticaria) caused by strawberries and other causes, caused by shellfish, we may think there is something peculiar about strawberries and shellfish that causes the hives. As a matter of fact it is not the strawberries or the shellfish but something about the make-up of the individual that causes these foods to bring on skin irritation. Similarly it is personality make-up that causes pollen to develop hay fever or asthma. The same pollen does not cause any disturbance in the rest of the population. Men, women and children develop hives, hay fever, asthma, stomach upsets because there is too much histamine in their blood and tissues. Histamine, then, is the underlying cause and that is why anti-histamine drugs are so successful in giving relief in all these ailments.

Among the anti-histamine drugs the best known is adrenalin or epinephrine injected under the skin, so effective in attacks of asthma and hay fever. Other helpful anti-histamine drugs are benadryl and pyribenzamine, both of which can be taken by mouth.

In "Modern Medicine of Canada," Dr. Howard T. Behrman, Assistant Clinical Professor of Dermatology, University of Toronto, states that in allergic conditions (where the individual produces too much histamine and is allergic or sensitive to various substances), the anti-histamine drug overcomes the action of the histamine so that it cannot cause skin eruptions.

Dr. Behrman points out that while these anti-histamines are effective for hives and other skin eruptions and irritations, due to pollen and other substances in the air, they are equally valuable in hives due to foods and drugs, due to drugs, especially penicillin and purils (itching) often present from unknown causes.

It is true of course that some of these anti-histamines may cause side effects such as nausea and vomiting, but these symptoms pass away when the drug is withdrawn.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington — What Secretary of the Navy Matthews is up against in the demotion of Adm. Louis Denfeld is not Denfeld's testimony before Congress; but the basic question of whether the Navy Department is to be run by a civilian.

Except for stubborn old Josephus Daniels, who was thoroughly hated by the admirals, and Charles Edison, who was finally ousted out by the admirals, there has been no secretary of the navy in the last 50 years who has really dominated the Navy Department.

In a previous column it was shown how Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox was constantly short-circuited or ignored by the admirals. One thing that upset Knox was the terrible submarine tragedy and the navy's inability to cope with it during the first year of the war.

In World War 1 not a single American soldier was lost from submarine attack while crossing the Atlantic. In World War 2 the death toll was so great that it was kept a strict military secret, and only afterward was it known that 4,600 American troops needlessly drowned. And this did not include merchant seamen.

In addition, the sinking of merchant vessels even one year after Pearl Harbor hit the sickening total of 1,000,000 tons per month. Nazi U-boats lurked along the American coast with brazen effrontery, prowled near the beaches of Atlantic City, Jacksonville and Miami.

Despite the secrecy, the American public knew that something was wrong with the navy's defenses. But few people ever knew what went on inside.

Secretary Knox stormed, caajoled, and pleaded. But he could not quickly surmount the mistake the admirals made in concentrating on big battleships at the expense of the ungainly escort vessels. Nor could he quickly remedy the fact that no provision had been made for enough sonic or listening devices, or to train men to use them.

Another trouble was that the navy had plans for nine different types of escort vessels, and the admirals could not decide which was best. Finally it took a civilian,

Charles E. Wilson, head of the War Production Board, to settle the question. He called in naval architect William F. Gibbs, who recommended a design not unlike the British corvette.

But this was not done until almost one year after Pearl Harbor. Duke of Windsor Intervenes

The admirals were also urged to borrow submarine experts from the British, who had gone through two years of fighting Nazi subs, and just about had them licked. However, only one British naval officer was invited to advise the American navy.

Subsequently the Duke of Windsor and Fred Samuels of the War Shipping Administration stepped in to persuade the navy to adopt the protective device which ultimately defeated the submarine.

The device, invented by Lieut. Comdr. Carl Herluf Hohn, a Danish-born American naval officer, got bogged down between three navy bureaus, all rivals—Naval Ordnance Laboratory, Bureau of Ships, and Bureau of Ordnance. Between them, the invention remained stymied for two whole years—while American ships and lives were being sent daily to the bottom of the sea.

It was Fred Samuels, who, learning of the invention from the Duke, warned the admirals that if they did not immediately use this anti-submarine weapon, the Maritime Commission would use it independently.

That was how the most important anti-submarine device of the entire war came into being. It illustrates what Frank Knox was up against in his struggle to run a department where the admirals kept him in the dark, ignored him, or went over his head to the White House.

Forrestal Got Wise

At the time Frank Knox died, the admirals made it a practice to meet in formal session, show him a few routine cables, then adjourn. Later they handled the really important war cables which Knox never knew existed.

When James Forrestal became secretary of the navy, his former aide, Capt. John Gingrich, tipped him off to this practice, suggested that Forrestal go up to the communications room and look over the other telegrams the admirals held out on him.

This Forrestal did. Simultaneously, Captain Gingrich got disciplined. The top brass relegated him to the innocuous job of chief of personnel at Miami, Fla., where he could not tip off the secretary of the navy any more.

That was the turning point in Forrestal's running of the navy—not unlike Secretary Matthews' crisis with Denfeld today. He ordered Gingrich back to Washington as deputy chief of personnel, appointed Admiral Denfeld chief of personnel, and things went smoothly for Forrestal from that point until the grueling debate over unification set in.

But when Forrestal finally sided against the admirals in favor of unification, some of them never forgave him. They worked against him in many ways they have opposed Secretary Matthews.

And in the last two months of his life, Forrestal, emotionally upset by the bickering, sometimes broke down in the middle of conferences and wept over the fact that his friends in the navy had turned against him.

Navy Merry-Go-Round

Adm. Arthur Radford, when leaving Washington for Pearl Harbor, told disciples: "We're in this thing to stay and we'll win or sink." ... Radford is the admiral who touched off the navy revolt.

Operation 23, the navy propaganda unit, has started a whispering campaign against Adm. Forrestal. They call him the "Quisling of the Navy" for supporting unification. ... Every one expected fireworks at the first meeting of the joint chiefs of staff after General Bradley had fired his "Fancy Dams" barrage at the admirals. But nothing happened.

Bradley called Admiral Denfeld "Louie" and at the second meeting Denfeld presided in Bradley's absence. Ironically, he was presiding at the moment President Truman fired him. ... President Truman has told friends he is going to ax several high-ranking army force generals if they don't quit scheming to build a 70-group air force.

Public Has Reason to Suspect That Blunder Was Made in Removal of Denfeld

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Nov. 4—When the majority leader and the minority leader of the House of Representatives both declare that a raw deal has been given Admiral Denfeld, who was removed as chief of naval operations because he ventured to express his convictions to the House Armed Services Committee, the public can rightly suspect that a blunder has been made.

Representative McCormack, Democratic leader, was so indignant when the news came out that he personally telephoned President Truman his protest. Minority Leader Martin publicly denounced the action as contempt of Congress because a witness was punished for testifying before a congressional committee.

The record of published comments by Secretary of Defense Johnson and Secretary of the Navy Matthews is evidence in itself of ineffectiveness and contradiction.

Secretary Matthews, in his letter to President Truman, questioned the loyalty of Admiral Denfeld to his superiors, declaring that there must be no "twilight zone" in loyalty.

Secretary Johnson then declared, in a telegram to the late Representative Hiram C. Bland, that Admiral Denfeld wasn't removed because of his testimony before Congress but, in effect, because of a "lack of qualifications."

Mr. Matthews, in addressing the admirals and other naval officers at the ceremony on last Wednesday installing Admiral Sherman as the new chief of naval operations, paid tribute to Admiral Denfeld and said that his new post "would provide an opportunity to round out his naval career as a statesman as well as a distinguished naval officer." He added that it would "keep his valuable abilities available for the best interests of the navy."

How can Admiral Denfeld on one day be "disloyal" to his superiors and yet the next day be entrusted with so important a post as commander-in-chief of the forces of the United States in European waters? The "lack of qualifications" to which Secretary of Defense Johnson refers could hardly have been removed and the "valuable abilities" to which Secretary Matthews refers repossessed overnight.

Small wonder that Admiral Denfeld is in a quandary and has taken 60 days' leave within which he will decide whether to accept the new post or apply for retirement, as he is entitled to do under the law.

The admiral, however, is not alone in being the victim of ineptness and blunder. For Secretary Matthews, in his speech at the ceremony at which Admiral Sherman was installed as the new chief of naval operations, said something which is being as widely resented today as General Bradley's recent charge that the navy doesn't want "to hit the line unless it can call the signals." Mr. Matthews pointedly told naval officers that they owe an obligation to the nation as well as to the navy—as if they had not been conscious of this obligation before.

This is hardly the right way to speak to naval officers who have risked their lives for their country. The navy today is the victim of misrepresentation of its position in many quarters. Not only have press dispatches called the men who testified at the request of the House committee "traitors," but high officers of the Truman administration claim the naval officers are against "unification" and against "the law of the land."

The navy has been and is in favor of unification. What the navy opposes is attempted demoralization of the armed services by the air force, domination by the service, in the navy view, is not unification but means demoralization.

The unification law does not authorize one service to carry on a campaign publicly or behind the scenes to emasculate another service in the name of "strategic concepts." There is no authority in the law for two services to make up their own minds as to which service weapons can be used in performing the missions assigned to that service. Yet that's what "unification" means at the Pentagon building.

The 31 members of the House Armed Services Committee, 16 Republicans and 15 Democrats, who listened to all the recent testimony, will never write a report accusing the navy of blocking "unification" or of failing to obey "the law of the land"—for the simple reason that such charges aren't true. AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, Nov. 3.—Paul Draper, the often dancer of the stylish and expensive night clubs, who sued Mrs. John T. McCullough for $100,000 for citing from official records of Congress, is the son of Muriel Draper, who is the subject of an interesting biography of nine pages in a recent publication of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. This pamphlet is called "Report on the Congress of American Women."

I recommend it to patrons of night clubs who may be invited to pay money to see Paul Draper cut the pigeon wing, toss his pretty curls and stamp a dainty foot and to neighborhood cultural groups which import such talent for concerts on winter nights.

As I have reported, Mrs. McCullough, a young American wife and mother of normal interests and small means, brought down calamity by just venturing to say that, as a member of a local culture-bund, of Greenwich, Conn., called the Community Concerts Association, she objected to the payment of any of her money to either Draper or his partner, Leroy Adler, who play the mouth organ. The political antics and associations have attracted the official notice of that congressional body which is charged with the duty of exposing organized hostility against the United States.

Adler also sued for $100,000 and, as I have previously related, the pair of them were able, under a Connecticut law, to attach the McCulloughs' home and their modest bank account and put them to legal expenses which would have been absolutely overwhelming but for the generosity of patriotic Americans all over who have been sending in contributions.

In Connecticut, one accused of being a Communist or fellow-traveler or any merely malicious plaintiff has the power to tie up a loyal American's money and property with an attachment on the merest pretext just by filing suit. He doesn't have to get judgment first disproving the charges as he would in most other states. In Connecticut there are a great many Communists and fellow-travelers flittered in from New York.

Although one of Draper's lawyers recused himself, it is clear he was not answerable for his mother's politics, he was under her influence much of his life and his own.

political associations and preferences have been noteworthy.

Muriel Draper is the new president of an organization called the Congress of American Women. The report of the committee on Un-American Activities states that this is an affiliate of the Women's International Democratic Federation.

The purpose of these organizations is to serve as a special aid of Soviet political warfare and demoralize the United States and democratic nations generally in order to render them helpless in the face of the Communist drive for world domination.

Continuing, it says that the committee's purpose here is to destroy American women from inside by leading themselves to the purposes of Mrs. Draper's organization.

"Muriel Draper," the biography says, "is the daughter of the distinguished Sanders family of Haverhill, Mass., who married into the even more socially and artistically prominent Draper family of New York. Her husband, Paul Draper, was a writer, well-known throughout Europe, and I would interrupt at this point to say that he was the original being, or butt, of that concentrated criticism which ran: '...his singing is better than it sounds but he has no money and no affectations and he got by. It was better than working.'"

"Before their divorce, Muriel and Paul lived and entertained brilliantly in London. She said her son, Paul Jr., who is also now a well-known fellow-traveler of the Communists, to experience and establish her own social status."

While she damns American capitalism and all its works she has been an ardent proponent of the Soviet Union for nearly two decades. The Communists have succeeded in exploiting for their own shrewdly calculated, constitutional purposes her standing in exclusive social circles. It is difficult to understand her furious outbursts against her own country and her admiration for the Soviet Union with all its poverty, demoralization and tyranny.

"She was well known in artistic circles as a pianist, a lecturer of sorts, a dancer in party."

Mrs. Muriel Dodge Lihon, in one of her books, explained that the defection of Muriel Draper's husband had embittered her.

Red Shadow Over Asia

By SPENCER DAVIS

Manila, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Communist victory in China is making a profound impact on the Philippines, just across the South China Sea.

Few leaders of this republic need to be reminded that Formosa, last stronghold of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's crumbling Nationalist Government, is only 300 miles from the northern Philippines—an hour away by air. They remember too well that Japan used Formosa for an air base to assault these islands.

If the United States and Britain recognize Communist China, will they let Formosa pass inside the Red zone as an integral part of the new Chinese regime?

This question is troubling the Philippine Foreign Office more than it cares to admit. It may explain why Dr. Thomas W. Lili, leader of a Formosan separatist movement, was granted entry into the Philippines recently over the protest of the Chinese Nationalist Embassy.

This island republic has backed up from the bold anti-Communist position it took last July. Then Chiang was welcomed here by President Elpidio Quirino, jointly they called for an anti-Red pact. The U. S., Britain and India snubbed this plan because of the Nationalist Generalissimo's participation. A modified non-military southeast Asia union, proposed later by Quirino, likewise failed to catch hold.

Without big power support, the Philippine president has adopted a middle-of-the-road course. This foreign office has announced that recognition of Red China is being considered. No further move is expected until the western democracies take the lead.

Recognition of China's Red regime poses a far different problem for the Philippines than for either the U. S. or Britain.

There is a large and influential Chinese community throughout these islands. Some 250,000 overseas Chinese have long dominated retail and wholesale outlets through a gridwork of small stores.

It is felt that if a Chinese Communist embassy opened in Manila it would exert considerable influence on local Chinese because most of them have relatives in South China.

There is also the question of encouragement that recognition of Red China would give to the Communist-led Hukbalahap peasant rebellion in Central Luzon.

Included Some Chinese

When the "Huks" started as a guerrilla outfit against the Japanese they included a number of Chinese known as Wachi.

The Wachi have disbanded, but the Philippine constabulary still feels their influence in the continuing fight against the Huks. The Wachi brought from China's war fronts many of the tricks the Filipino guerrillas now use against the government.

Philippine Army Intelligence agents have found evidence of financial support and propaganda passing from local Chinese to the Huks army.

A lively trade in smuggling Chinese into the Philippines has flourished for years. There's not much the Philippine naval patrol can do about it, with 14,000 miles of coastline to watch.

Considerable smuggling of Chinese still is going on and many Communists are among them. The government has been trying to deport 10,000 Chinese to Formosa, claiming they have overstayed their leave.

The Philippine government has shown repeatedly how it feels about Communism.

Speaking to the American Congress in Washington last summer, Quirino said:

"We are determined to carry on and to fight to the last man on the side of America if freedom should be menaced and the democratic way of life imperilled."

Dr. Jose P. Laurel, Quirino's chief rival for the presidency in next Tuesday's elections, also has declared himself incapable of being a Communist because he is a devout Catholic.

Laurel, however, has received the support of the Philippine Communist party because he is considered pro-Nationalist. Laurel's ardent preaching of the "Asia for the Asians" doctrine as president of the puppet government during the Japanese occupation also has had the effect of drawing anti-American support.

The predominantly Catholic Philippines, in any case, would be among the last countries of Asia to succumb to Communism, but most people agree that this republic is directly in the path of the Red advance.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York (AP)—Watching a surgeon rescue a dying woman from the tentacles of cancer is an unforgettable sight.

I had this experience over the week end along with a number of newsmen and 1,000 doctors invited to the demonstration by the American Cancer Society.

It was done by television, using a color process developed by the Columbia Broadcasting system. And it proved—whatever the immediate commercial future of color television may be—that this form of video already is of value in teaching surgical techniques.

The viewing screens were set up in the Biltmore Hotel. The television camera itself was 25 blocks away, trained on an operating table in Memorial Hospital.

The surgeon was Dr. Alexander Brunschwig, a famous cancer expert. The woman, about 51, was unidentified. She had agreed in advance to the operation to be televised, hoping it would be of value to the assembled doctors.

"This is in no sense a cure," explained Dr. Brunschwig. "Her case is hopeless. Radiation has failed. She is in pain, and this operation will relieve that."

He spoke through a microphone attached to his throat. The camera showed only his hands and the patient's abdomen as he swiftly made his incision.

Opening the body cavity, he discovered the malignant tumor had spread through most of the woman's lower organs. The tissues stood out in clear relief under color television. But whenever the camera switched back to black-and-white, they became almost indistinguishable.

Quickly, cutting here, putting camp there, he freed the malignant mass. Its size drew a gasp from the audience. To remove it the surgeon had to take out the cervix, bladder, and part of the colon and intestine.

"Now we have taken out all the tumorous tissue visible to the naked eye," said Dr. Brunschwig. His inference was clear—there were other malignant areas impossible to reach with the knife. The blue-black cancer spots on the excised organs showed clearly on the screen.

"There is some question as to whether radical operations of this nature are worthwhile," the surgeon said, calmly, as he bowed up the covered blood vessels.

But we learn something from them. And some patients have lived more than two years after still alive after such operations.

"The patient is relaxed, comfortable and restored to usefulness. At least in any case, she has a time at least in any case, she has a philosophize about it. We do for each individual what we can."

And the picture faded from the screen as the surgeon went about the routine task of sewing up his patient.

Later that day I sat before another TV set and watched Dr. Brunschwig, the same man, the same face, 40 to 50, in a color film, his vision, catching a life and death drama in the minutes, passing in the afternoon.

All through the night I kept thinking of the unknown lady in the hospital, who can't see the long but at least won't hurt her while I wonder what she will do with the time she has left.

Dewey Breaks Crossing Ground . . .

those of the minority party, had asked "where was the $600,000,000," and there were attempts to get it out of the bank "but we said no, even if we have to sweat it out for three years."

No contracts were let in 1945, he said, except those resulting in a "couple of emergencies," and the minority insisted on asking about the $600,000,000.

"Year after year they got up and asked about it, and we said no," he reported, and then when they made it appear as though "somebody had slipped it into a back pocket and gone off with it, we gave them an accounting—piece by piece, playground by playground, highway by highway and hospital by hospital."

Then when it was again asked, he joked, "we decided that they could write, but they couldn't read."

The governor then stressed what saving means to good government and he told of his first grade-crossing dedication at Fonda. This one, he said had been there since 1870 when Commodore Vanderbilt was president of the New York Central Railroad, and had long been sorely in need of repair.

Happy Day for Newkirk

Referring to Mayor Newkirk's address, the governor observed that the mayor had said the local crossing elimination had been a problem ever since he, (the mayor) was born, and that was 42 years ago, and he added, "Mayor I am glad that this is a happy day for you."

Speaks to School Children

Addressing the crowds of school children in the area, the governor noticed that they got out of school a half hour earlier, and he drew the biggest laugh from the crowd when he advised, "Don't ever say a Republican governor didn't do anything for you."

The governor then referred to Bertram M. Tallamy, who heads the state department of public works, and who was with him on the platform, and speaking directly to the school children, reminded them how this department and its men have worked and continues working to improve living conditions.

"We can go on and spend millions," the governor stressed, building new highways and making other improvements, but it means nothing if you do nothing for us." Wide state roads, he said, make driving safer, and may even keep the drunks and speeders "on the other side," but he advised that the wide roads and other improvements are to no avail if "you, yourselves do not help to make life more secure."

"I want you to promise me that you'll drive a lot safer than your parents do," he asked, "and if you will promise to drive less than 50 miles an hour and be careful, you'll be doing your share and you'll live a lot longer."

Youngsters Shout, 'Yes'

The scattered groups of youngsters shouted "yes" when the governor repeated his question more directly to them, and he then left the platform to break the ground in front of the power shovel of Lipsett Inc., contractor for the crossing project.

The governor was in a noticeably cheerful and friendly mood throughout his stay in the city, and when he came back to the platform after breaking the ground, he was besieged by groups of children seeking autographs.

Observing that there were too many to handle and reminding them that if he stayed he would be late for his next engagement, he advised them to write him directly and they would receive his signature on a card bearing the gold seal of the state.

Before the dedication ceremony the governor and his party accompanied Mayor Newkirk and local officials on a tour of the local recreation center.

Cannely In Speaker

Corporation Counsel Cannely in his address of welcome said: "For years we have dreamed and hoped for the elimination of this grade crossing which has taken its toll in human lives, which often delays the prompt arrival of fire fighting equipment, which hampers business and which has been and is a source of vexation and annoyance to all of us. Today we see the realization of those hopes and dreams. It is a momentous day and adds a page to the illustrious history of our City of Kingston."

It was a unique privilege, he said, to have appearing on the same platform the leaders of three branches of state government; Governor Dewey, executive; Senator Wicks, President Pro Tem and Majority Leader of the Senate, legislative; and Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, John T. Loughran, judicial.

Two years ago when Mayor Newkirk assumed office, he said, he "began to use his every power to facilitate the commencement of this grade crossing elimination project. To him must go at least a share of the credit for the beginning of the work on this project."

Mayor Newkirk spoke as follows:

Reverend members of the clergy, Governor Dewey, Senator Wicks, Superintendent Tallamy, distinguished guests and fellow citizens.

This is a great day for Kingston.

Today we are witnessing an event which the people of this city have been hoping for ever since I was born.

Today we are breaking ground for the elimination of this crossing which has brought death to some of our people and which has cost us countless thousands of dollars in time lost because of traffic delays on our main thoroughfare.

This crossing has been with us since the West Shore Railroad was built here in the 1830's. At that time, because the elevation of the Wilbur bridge is very much lower than the elevation of Broadway, the railroad tracks into Kingston under Broadway. The Board of Aldermen of those days wanted to see the trains come into Kingston above the ground and refused to permit the tracks to be depressed below Broadway. The railroad therefore had to build a high trestle east of Wilbur avenue, which later was filled in, and raised the level of the roadbed so that the trains could pass over Broadway at grade.

Automobiles, of course, were unknown in those days. After the advent of motor traffic, the delays experienced at this crossing slowed down our entire community life. With both hospitals on the east side of the track, and most of our physicians living on the west side, many unfortunate delays were caused in servicing our sick and injured.

The same hazard existed as to fire, police and ambulance services, and in transporting students to and from the Kingston High School.

In 1917 several of our citizens were killed here when a West Shore train struck a trolley car. On this crossing in 1937 three fine members of the Kingston Fire Department met their death, and a fire truck was demolished in a collision between the truck and a train.

The elimination of this dangerous crossing has been talked about in this city for many years.

Used as Topic in 1911

As far back as 1911, Harry Halvorson, a well-known local architect, speaking as class orator of his graduation class at exercises held in old Kingston Academy chose for his oration the subject "Why must we eliminate the Broadway Crossing?"

In 1919, Mayor Palmer Canfield prepared a plan for the elimination of the crossing, which called for depressing Broadway to a two-lane highway, with 20-foot marginal roads on either side of the street to give access to the properties in the area. This was known as the "Canfield Plan." The city, under the Canfield administration, went so far as to acquire certain properties necessary to carry out its plan but was prevented from proceeding with its plan by a successful taxpayers' action brought in the Supreme Court.

In 1928, the Public Service Commission issued an order for the elimination of the crossing within the present boundaries of the street and without acquiring any real estate.

In 1935, the Commission proposed that the plan be amended to provide for an underpass only 38 feet wide, with 16 feet marginal roads on each side of the street to service existing buildings.

That plan was opposed by Mayor Helmsman on the ground that it would result in a dangerous traffic bottle-neck and termed the Commission's plan "a rat-hole plan."

In 1939, the Common Council demanded that all of the grade crossings in the city be eliminated by depressing the railroad. This plan was rejected by the Public Service Commission on the ground that it would cost $10,000,000 and that it would seriously interfere with the industrial plants of the city because their sidings would be left high and dry above the depressed main line tracks.

In 1940, Mayor Helmsman, City Engineer James G. Norton and Consulting Engineer Edward J. McCaffrey, developed a plan, "E," calling for depressing Broadway its entire width in the affected area, with a 54-foot wide highway and 80-foot sidewalks, with a bridge connecting Railroad and Greenhill avenues, and with new north and south streets on both sides of the tracks to insure a free and rapid flow of traffic in the area after the elimination is completed.

After months of consultation between the Helmsman administration and railroad and states agencies, the Public Service Commission, in April, 1941, ordered the New York Central Railroad to proceed with the preparation of plans and specifications according to the plan prepared by the Helmsman administration, with one major exception.

Plan Given Approval

This plan, called Plan "E" modified, was finally approved by the Public Service Commission in November, 1941 and would have been built long since had Pearl Harbor not occurred on December 7 of that year.

During the war which followed, all thought of construction had to be abandoned because of the war effort. Then for a long time after the war, it was impossible to get the materials to build because of unstable conditions in the construction industry.

Conditions in that industry finally stabilized two years ago and contractors were able and willing to bid on contracts of this kind.

Ever since I have been mayor, I have emphasized to Senator Dewey's emergency "watchdog committee" the necessity for proceeding with this job to forever rid this city of this hazardous and time-consuming handicap to our community.

Working with and through him, and with him working through Governor Dewey, we were able about a year ago to set in motion the various steps which have since been taken by various state officials to bring about the splendid and welcome result we are celebrating here today.

On behalf of the people of the city of Kingston, I extend my thanks to Senator Wicks to Governor Dewey and to everyone else who have contributed to the solution of this problem.

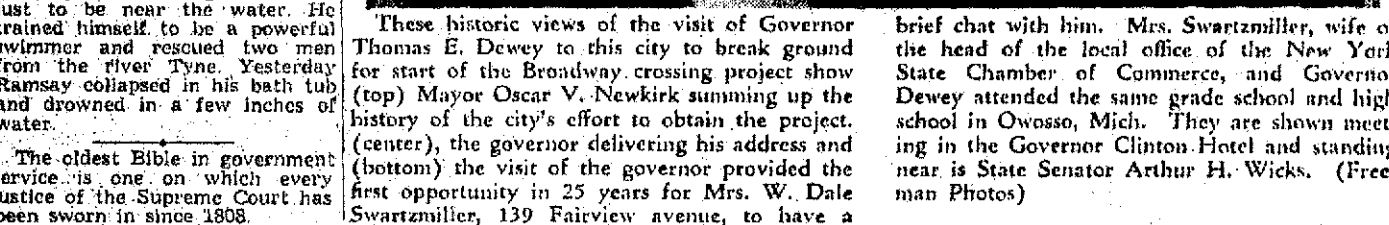

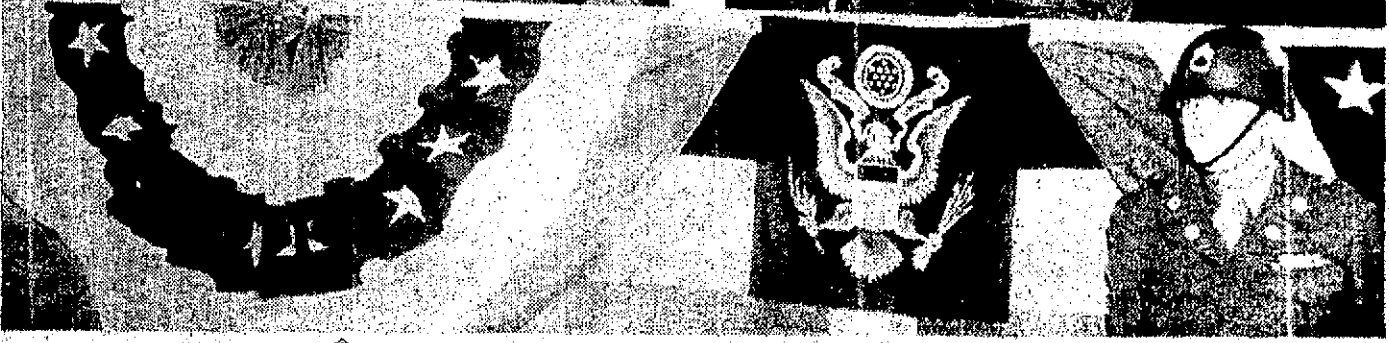

To the Broadway crossing, I say, good riddance and farewell to it forever. It has been a blight on and a hazard to this city for far too many years.

To the new elimination underpass, I say welcome to our city. We are glad to see you started and can hardly wait for you to be finished.

Talks at Own Funeral

Denver, Nov. 4 (AP)—"This is my funeral. The clergy is a racket. I want no religious songs. This is going to be a perfectly rational funeral." So spoke the recorded voice of Oscar O. Whitbeck, 79, at his own funeral yesterday. There was no eulogy or religious music. He had made the recording and planned his funeral several months ago. The voice of the former editor of the Denver Post Open Forum explained: "I am an atheist and have been for many years." He attacked religion, the Bible and beliefs in God. At the end there was a pause. Then barely audible, his voice said "that's all." The record was placed in the casket and buried with Whitbeck's body in Crown Hill Cemetery.

Charges Politics

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Prime Minister Attlee says Russia is using its United Nations veto as an "instrument of power politics" and for furthering the "expansionist aims" of the Soviet Union. Speaking last night at a United Nations rally in suburban Walthamstow, the Labor prime minister charged Soviet Russia and her eastern European satellites with obstructing the work of the U.N. "Despite all their professions," Attlee said, "that group of powers in eastern Europe who obey the orders of the Kremlin are anti-democratic."

Central Hudson Granted Increase

Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. announced today that the New York State Public Service Commission has granted the company an increase in its gross annual electric revenue of one and three tenths per cent. The decision concludes commission action on a rate increase petition filed by Central Hudson December 1, 1948.

New electric rates for company customers will be determined during November and will go into effect December 1. They will result in an over-all increase in the company's electric revenue of approximately $135,000 annually.

Commenting on the Public Service Commission's decision, Ernest R. Acker, president of Central Hudson, said: "The Commission has not yet had opportunity to determine the specific rates necessary to give the company the additional revenue authorized. But it is expected that this decision will be made shortly."

"Except for a three per cent electric rate increase of last April, Central Hudson has not increased its electric rates in 28 years. In fact the trend has been strongly the other way. In 1928 the cost for a monthly usage of 150 kilowatt hours of electricity for home use was $22. In 1948 it was only $5.50.

"Even though it is small in amount, the additional revenue now granted the company will help us to meet the increased costs for material, fuel and wages characteristic of the recent years of inflation. It will also assist us to continue good electric service for our customers."

It's Churchill, 6 to 4

His second choice for the 1950 election is Prime Minister Clement Attlee at 5 to 2. By British custom the leader of the winning party in the national election usually becomes premier. Churchill leads the Conservatives, Attlee the currently ruling Laborites.

896 Major Defects Found in Medical Exams of Pupils

Dr. Samuel S. Nussbaum, medical inspector of the Kingston School Health Department, has submitted his first preliminary report to the Board of Education for the current school year. Of the 5,876 pupils registered in the city school system to date 1,966 have been given physical examinations and 896 major defects have been found.

The number completely negative is 501 and the medical department has mailed out 832 notices to parents in regard to physical defects. The school nurses have made 211 home calls and there have been 852 conferences with pupils, 712 with teachers, 83 with parents and 60 other conferences held, a total of 3,707 conferences.

Dr. Nussbaum reports 2,027 inspections and first aid given in 722 cases. A total of 109 children have been excluded for medical reasons.

The medical department has also granted 20 limited working permits, 57 regular working permits and none has been refused.

Teeth Lead List

In a breakdown of the defects revealed by the medical examinations, defective teeth leads with a total of 760, eye difficulties come next with 78 and tonsils place third with 62 defects found. Following is a breakdown of the defects with where notes have been mailed or where treatment has been started wherever possible.

Nutrition 48, Teeth 760, Tonsils 62, Nose 3, Glands 12, Eyes 78, Aden glands 199, Cardiac 19, Lungs 1, Hernia 4, Severe postural 52, Skin-scurf 9, Mental 1, Speech 4.

In the dental department 153 patients have been examined and 191 visits made. Four refused treatment. There were 99 extractions, 215 fillings given and 41 X-rays made.

Soapstone is used chiefly in roofing paper, foundry facings, insecticides and as a filler for asphaltum.

TOWN OF SHANDAKEN REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES

A voluntary statement contained in the recently released "Report of Examination" of the town of Shandaken compiled by an examiner from the State of New York Department of Audit and Control, Division of Municipal Affairs, tersely states the qualifications of Reginald H. Every of Mr. Tremper, Republican candidate for the office of supervisor of the town of Shandaken.

In the summary of that financial report which covers a period from January 1, 1946 to December 31, 1948, Examiner John Meek who made the audit states "the examiners wish to commend the supervisor for the complete and accurate manner in which he maintained the records pertaining to his office." This brief statement in the splendid report of the town of Shandaken is a tribute to the man who seeks re-election this fall.

During the year January 1, 1948 to December 31, 1948, receipts of the town were $83,890.05 and there was disbursed $82,466.34 leaving a balance of $1,423.71 on the last day of 1948. To have handled this amount of business and merit the commendation of the auditors, speaks well for the chief official of the town as well as for the other town officials who worked along with the supervisor.

Mr. Every, born in the town of Shandaken where he has always resided, has always been and is today deeply interested in the affairs of the people of his town. Not only in the governmental business which comes to him as supervisor but in all things which concern the welfare of the town he has always taken an active part. Special campaigns, school affairs, any public matter involving the good of the people of his town have always received his full attention and aid.

Betts' Talk on Thursday Evening

James H. Betts, Democratic candidate for alderman-at-large, in a talk Thursday spoke in part as follows:

I have heard it said that one of the opposition spokesmen made the remark that their only hope of winning this election was to so confuse the people that no one would know who was right. So the opposition campaign has followed a deliberate pattern to put confusion on confusion. For example their last evening's advertisement in the Freeman regarding the National Ulster County Bank assessment. Those scribbled notes were merely work sheets of a clerk in the assessor's office, written in pencil. They are not sheets from the official assessment roll which was signed by me August 29, 1947.

There was no reduction in the bank's assessment over the previous year on which the Whelan Drug Company could base a claim for preferential treatment on the 33 1/3 increase.

What about the total present assessment of the city. The mayor has not answered my question as when it is to be published. Is it true that it is lower by some $3,000,000? If so, who is going to make up this deficit? Is it the small home owner from whom the mayor assumed that he would remove the tax burden?

Whether or not I am elected I expect to retain my interest in civic affairs and continue to make Kingston a better place in which to live. As far back as 1940 I was a director of the Kingston Industrial Bureau and since then I have twice been elected a director of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce. Twice within the past year I have testified at public hearings in favor of better railroad service. I have devoted considerable time in writing to public officials to secure their support for the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge.

I believe I have attended nearly every public hearing on the elimination of the Broadway crossing, over the years. On August 8, 1940, I went to Albany with Mayor Heiselman and Engineer McCaffery where I attended a hearing as the representative of the Kingston-Uptown Business Men's Association. I am a director of the Ulster county branch of the American Cancer Society; also a member of the Farm Bureau. Let us not forget that much of the business of Kingston is derived from the surrounding agricultural countryside.

In various affairs, fraternal affairs and fraternal affairs I have always taken an active part. In the next two years whether I remain a private citizen or through your votes become a public official, I shall continue to work for a better Kingston for all of us.

Expects Peace Treaty

Manila, Nov. 4 (AP)—A high allied intelligence source in Japan said Gen. Douglas MacArthur expects a peace treaty with Japan to be signed in Tokyo early next year. This source, who can not be named, said the allied occupation chief was highly gratified at the progress made since British Foreign Secretary Bevin and U. S. Secretary of State Acheson reportedly reached agreement on all major points during economic discussions in Washington.

The scientific name for the small Tibetan fox is Vulpes xanthopus.

Nudity in Britain Disturbing to Some

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—The Public Morality Council said today the vogue for naked women in the British theatre is getting out of hand.

And a spokesman asserted the council is going to keep pestering the Lord Chamberlain—Britain's No. 1 censor—until he does something about it.

"We are not morbid folk and we are not giving to carping for its own sake," a spokesman told a reporter.

"We like good entertainment, but we don't like filthy entertainment. Some of the things you see on the British stage today are not conducive to a healthy mind."

An increasing trend toward the nude female form as a backdrop for revenders has been noted in recent months. Some members of the council blame this on an invasion earlier in the year by the French folies bergere.

Most of the nude cuties in the folies were British girls hired for the occasion. But the pure in heart complained they looked just as naked as any unclothed Parisienne at the Moulin Rouge.

Under present British censorship rules, nudity is okay as long as the girls stand still. No jiggling or weaving is permitted. The Morality Council is made up of church goers of all denominations.

Wins Her Divorce

Teterboro, N. J., Nov. 4 (AP)—The mayor of Teterboro has divorced one of her councilmen. The mayor, Mrs. Vera Martucci, obtained the divorce from Councilman James M. Martucci yesterday in Hackensack from Advisory Master William A. Hegarty. Mrs. Martucci charged desertion by her husband. Mrs. Martucci, a service assistant supervisor for the New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, became Bergen county's first woman mayor last May. The tiny borough has a five-member council to rule over its 40 listed residents.

The Joiners

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Kingston Lodge 550, B.P.O. Elks, will be held at the Elks' Club, Fair street, Monday night at 8:15 o'clock. After a short business meeting, Maj. Helena Clearwater will speak. All members are urged to be present.

He has served many years as a member of the Board of Fire Commissioners of the Phoenixia Fire District and has also served as trustee of School District No. 7, of Shandaken and in the recent organization of the Ontario Central School District he took an active part. The Red Cross, hospital drives and other campaigns to raise money for public use have always received his support and he has given much of his time to their success. In Boy Scout activities he has been a leader in the town.

With Mr. Every the town of Shandaken this fall has a splendid town ticket which merits the support of the voters of the town. Election of the Republican candidates will assure the taxpayers of the town of Shandaken continued good government by a team experienced in town and county affairs.

Leon Buley, candidate for town clerk, lives at Allaben and has had wide experience through past service. Ralph Thompson is the candidate for collector and George G. Fitchner is the Republican candidate for Town Superintendent of Highways. Mr. Fitchner by his past services has indicated his capability. Highway conditions in the town reveal his ability and he will continue to give his full time to the job. As assessor for the four-year term is Edward Lee and for the two year term George M. Beckman. William C. Weyman of Phoenixia has served as justice of the peace for several years and has demonstrated his ability to deal fairly, justly and intelligently with the problems of that office. Fred Decker and Edward France are candidates for councilman. George W. Bedell is the candidate for school director.

O'Neill's Talk on Thursday Evening

Francis J. O'Neill, Democratic candidate for mayor spoke Thursday. Following is a brief abstract:

I propose a planning commission composed of members of proven ability. Appointment to such a commission would be limited to persons whose interests in our city are paramount. I will be most willing to receive recommendations for membership on the planning commission, from the business, civic and labor organizations. I would recommend to the Common Council the most practical ideas for establishment of a planning commission. A complete draft of the non-partisan planning commission would be made available by me to the public, before submission to the Common Council. Such a planning commission would promote the future growth of our city, doing much to attract desirable business concerns.

I propose revision of our antiquated city charter. I would not advise complete revision at one time. Usually a referendum method of determining the desires of the people, and I would not oppose a referendum. However, this is a costly means and has already failed of passage and gives no promise of any different result. I propose careful revision of the charter, one chapter at a time, certainly it could be accomplished at a great saving to the taxpayers.

When I first discussed the Summer street dump, I said I would have more to say about it. Recent Freeman headlines would have you believe that it is in process of being promptly eliminated. This is not so. The only step thus far started is an offer for bids to enlarge the storage facilities of the incinerator. This has absolutely nothing to do with any immediate removal of this menace to the health of so many citizens. It is incomprehensible to me why we should permit the continuance of such a serious menace within a short radius of our high school, post office, city hall, junior high school, and various factories... all with a total daily outpouring of thousands of persons.

If I become mayor, I say to you that the Summer street dump will go. The closing, sealing and reclamation of the area will provide a site for further municipal development. The taxes lost to the city by the preferential treatment given large out-of-town corporations and big utilities at the expense of the home owners, in just one year, would have gone a long way toward the initial cleanup leading to the immediate and complete reclamation of that area.

I cannot overlook a form letter by which the mayor has just circulated the city. It is most interesting to note that even at this late moment the mayor fails to even try to answer any of my original charges of unfairness in the matter of assessment increases. And he does not even breathe a word about housing. My business life has taught me that before venturing into any uncharted field, it is absolutely necessary to explore every problem thoroughly and have every proposition thoroughly and honestly analyzed. Any contemplated project must be measured as to its overall worth to the city as against its cost in taxes. In short, the business of the city should be handled in an economical, efficient and businesslike manner.

About the Folks

J. Edward Carter of 74 Stephen street is convalescing at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, following an operation.

'Welcome Home'

of bottles, bricks, saucers, cups and broomsticks.

Over the sound truck loud-speakers, a voice roared:

"We are not going to be stopped by the Police Department of New York city. We will march."

Windows Shattered

Missiles shattered windows in the area. The paraders tried vainly to overturn a police car. Its windshield was smashed.

Police reserves, led by some of the department's top officials, poured into the area on edge for weeks over a bitter local election campaign in which Communism is a dominant issue.

Six persons—four of them Negroes—were arrested. One Negro was charged with assaulting a policeman. The other men were accused of disorderly conduct.

The injured police, none hurt seriously, were taken to hospitals after they were hit by bricks or other objects.

The parade finally broke up as some of the crowd followed Davis off to other meetings.

Davis later told newsmen: "My recollection is needed to end at once and for all the police department brutality, evidenced particularly tonight against Harlem's people."

"We are not going to stand for it."

The Negro councilman, with strong Communist support, is running for reelection next Tuesday on the American Labor Party ticket.

Davis said Harlemites were "celebrating and rejoicing the liberation of their rights."

A police department official, declining to be quoted by name, said the officers had no objection to a Harlem celebration for Davis. But he charged that hoodlums moved in and provoked the disturbance.

More Police Added

He called 98 per cent of Harlem's residents "good and law-abiding." The remaining two per cent, he said, are hoodlums "who, whenever possible, deliberately provoke trouble with uniformed police."

As a precaution against possible new outbreaks of violence, 300 additional police were assigned to patrol Harlem today and tonight.

The U. S. government delayed the release of the 11 Communists, for hours yesterday. Finally, however, it conceded that their bail was in order.

They walked out after dark while about 100 sympathizers outside the federal courthouse cheered and sang their familiar phrase:

"Like a tree by the water, we shall not be moved."

The government had asked no less than $1,000,000 in bail to guarantee that the 11 Communists will be around to serve their prison terms if they lose their appeals.

However, the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals set bail at $300,000 each for four of the Communists, who have bail-rumping records or are deportable aliens. The bond for the other seven was fixed at $20,000 each.

tabbed subversive by the U. S. attorney general's office as a "likely put up its money" as a bail. It took nearly 10 days, however, to get the money. The Appeals Court pointed out that even the government's case raises "a substantial question as to the constitutionality of the Smith Act."

The 11 were contacted after the act of conspiring to subvert violent overthrow of the U. S. Government. All were fined $500 each. Ten drew prison sentences of five years. The 11th got three years.

All are appealing their convictions by a federal appeals court. The appeals court will hear the case on Nov. 21 by Third Judge Harold R. Medina.

Judge Medina refused to bail while they were making their appeals.

The Appeals Court agreed to let them out on bail for $300,000 each. The government's case raises "a substantial question as to the constitutionality of the Smith Act."

Gabrielson Attacks

and which still threatened to bring our children and country down and create a model of income as yet unimagined by the nation's leaders.

Mr. Truman told a group of St. Paul businessmen that he had not forgotten the fact that the kind is to provide full employment, health, security and a better life for all Americans.

These things, he said, are the things that should be the basis of our national program. They are the things that should be the basis of our national program.

In various townships, he said, signed to stop the world spread of communism, the Truman administration has had the help of important Republican leaders. But not all of them is as wise as the one who said yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Kenneth G. Chalmers, a Presbyterian minister, that the Republican National Convention should be held in the bipartisan town of New York.

Do You Remember

Have just received an item from the New York Historical Society on the Clermont bell. This society founded in 1804, is an endowed educational institution composed of a large museum and library of American history. The museum is open daily, except Monday's, free to the public from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and Sunday's from 1 until 5 p. m. It is located at 170 Central Park West, at 76th street, New York.

They wrote me, "The original bell from Robert Fulton's famous steamboat, the Clermont, has been presented to the Society, according to Dr. Fenwick Beckman, the president. Alfred Van Santvoord, former president of the Hudson River Day Line was the donor. The bell measures 15 inches in diameter and 14 inches high, the bell passed through a long succession of owners, including the Hudson River Day Line during which time it was displayed in the cabin of the steamer, Robert Fulton. The bell was also used on the replica of the Clermont, constructed for the Hudson Fulton Celebration of 1909. (Which was bedded down in the Kingston Point Lagoon for as long as most of us remember the famous park.)

According to the item, "The Clermont was the first practical steamboat to navigate the Hudson as far as Albany, making its first trip in 1807. A year later the boat was lengthened and renamed the North River. The bell was saved when the steamer was broken up, being sold at auction in 1865 to a Newburgh resident, upon whose death it passed into the possession of a Holbrook, Mass., lady and was inherited by her son. It was finally purchased by Edgar K. Betts in Boston in 1908, becoming the property of the Day Line upon his death a year later.

Dr. Beckman, president of the Society also announced it received a collection of 438 theatrical posters, the gift of George A. Zabriskie, honorary president of the Society, and 764 song sheets presented by Mrs. Bella C. Landauer, a patron and honorary curator of the Society's Business and Professional Collection. The theatre posters cover the period from 1786 through the end of the 19th century and feature such productions as Uncle Tom's Cabin, Rip Van Winkle with Joseph Jefferson in 1879, Buffalo Bill in 1872, H. M. S. Pinafore at Niblo's Garden in 1880, and a variety of features at Daly's Fifth Avenue Theatre, Wallick's, and other theatres.

They further state, included among the song sheets, which cover the period from 1681 to the present day, are 463 items pertaining to New York city, 215 wine and drinking songs, and 63 relating to costumes, including a choice selection on the bloomer girl. It seems, the song sheets were collected by Mrs. Landauer for their illustrative covers. This should be an interesting museum to visit for local folks interested in historical items.

Clock in Sonata

London, Nov. 4 (AP)—Listeners on the B.B.C. were treated last night to a Sonata in D Minor for piano, cello—and alarm clock. The clock sounded over the air for 25 seconds. Then an announcer dashed forward, whipped open the purse of pianist Josephine Lee, snatched out the clock and turned it off. Miss Lee carries it around to time her practice sessions.

Republican Candidates

STANLEY J. PETRO
Stanley J. Petro, who is the Republican candidate to succeed himself as supervisor of the Third Ward, has been a resident of that ward for the past 20 years. He is thoroughly familiar with the needs of his ward and Ulster county.

Mr. Petro has been employed by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for the past 20 years and resides at 422 Hasbrouck avenue with his wife, the former Winifred McCutcheon, and his five children. Richard is a student at K.H.S., Mary Wynne at M.J.M., Stanley, Judith and Marcia Jeanne attend Public School No. 5.

While Mr. Petro has been a member of the Ulster County Board of Supervisors has earned a remarkable record of achievement. It was during this time that the City and County Board of Health and Welfare were consolidated, resulting in more efficient, progressive units. He was actively interested in the planning, financing and completion of the Ulster County Tumor Clinic, which makes Ulster county the first community in the United States to set up its own complete cancer care. During the mass free chest X-ray survey he received the utmost cooperation from the clubs and individual citizens of the Third Ward so that this project was the most successful in the City of Kingston.

Stanley J. Petro has always interested himself in the civic affairs of the ward, city and county. He is a member of various clubs and organizations. His policy has been to keep the county on the "pay as you go" plan and his familiarity with and interest in the needs and desires of the ward and city make him the ideal man to represent the people of the Third Ward and the city on the Ulster County Board of Supervisors.

Two Brothers Rescued From Raft in Atlantic

Montauk Point, N. Y., Nov. 4 (AP)—Two brothers were rescued from a collapsible raft yesterday after their 50-foot fishing trawler sprang a leak and sank about 20 miles out in the Atlantic ocean.

The fishermen, Felix C. Birch, 32, and his brother, William, 30, of 910 Stewart avenue, Mamaroneck, N. Y., were unharmed. They were the only persons aboard the trawler.

They said their trawler, Rose W., began leaking in the engine room. When it became apparent the pumps would not keep her afloat, the brothers took to the raft.

A Coast Guard plane from Floyd Bennett Field located the raft and gave radio directions to rescue craft nearby. The two men were picked up by the fishing boat, Old Nifty, of Connecticut, in about 30 minutes.

Earlier, it had been reported there were five persons aboard.

He said that the Hebrew Immigration Association Society (H.I.A.S.) also would end its work here in the near future. Observers interpreted these developments as providing additional evidence that Poland is determined to oust all western voluntary charitable agencies, closing out their work in Poland is CARE—the Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe.

Good Support Bids Bring Home Bacon

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Written for NEA Service

This is the fifth of a series of articles on responses to opening forcing bids of two in a suit. I have taken this series from a chapter in Fred L. Karpin's revised edition of the Point-Count System of Bidding in Contract Bridge.

In today's article Mr. Karpin explains what to do when your partner has opened the auction with a two-bid in a suit and you have the ace of one suit and the king of another. You bid the ace suit first, and then bid the king suit on your second response.

In today's hand, over South's two club opening, North correctly made a two spade response, showing the ace of spades. When South then rebid his clubs, North bid three diamonds, showing the king of that suit. South's bid of six clubs was right, as he was able to count 12 sure tricks.

(North, by the way, is known not to possess the king of clubs, for if he held this card in addition to the diamond king, his second response would have been four no trump, showing two kings).

If you have an ace of one suit, and the king of a suit bid by the opener, your first duty will be to show the ace. On your second response you will jump in the king suit (the "trump" suit). For example:

Opener

♠ K 4
♥ A 9 6
♦ 9 7 5 3
♣ 8 6 4 2

2 ♣ (a)
3 ♠ (b)
4 ♠ Pass

(a) Showing the ace of hearts.
(b) The spade king (trumps) specifically.

Alcohol for Valves

Boston, Nov. 4 (AP)—Boston University Bandmaster Edgar Gangware admitted today some of his musicians carry a bottle of alcohol in their pockets because of occasional need for anti-freeze on cold football afternoons. But Gangware specifies that the alcohol be of the denatured variety that it be used with an eye dropper and only on instrument valves "frozen" by the cold.

As Pegler Sees It

"Paul's attention turning to someone else proved the turning point in her destiny. After that she lived for the satisfaction of the ego. The Drapers moved to London. Muriel had a transfiguration there. She triumphed in London while the money lasted."

"Then, when Muriel Draper had nearly achieved the pinnacle of her consuming desire for importance, fame, even immortality, her husband entered their London residence at bedtime to confess that he had lost their last cent on a horse race. From that time her faith in capitalism suffered a heavy decline."

"A bored and disgruntled woman condemned to the relative barrenness of life in the United States, shorn of her position, her importance, and, significantly her audience, she turned elsewhere for an outlet to the pro-Soviet artistic circles in New York."

She was against the "imperialistic war" of Britain and France until Russia was attacked. Then she sponsored the Artists' Front to Win the War, "another Communist decoy." In December, 1948, she was chief United States delegate to the Women's International Democratic Federation in Budapest and received a "five minute ovation at the conclusion of her fiery blast against the United States."

The record presented by the Committee on Un-American Activities is one of the most shocking in the entire shelf of books which has lengthened year by year notwithstanding the opposition of Eleanor Roosevelt and other politicians operating under cover.

Draper recently has been whining that the wide publication of the allegations by Mrs. McCullough has made it difficult to support his wife and children. The inference seems to be that promoters and customers have begun to shun him. It would seem to follow also that his mother will experience some denial, for the committee's report quotes one authority to the effect that Paul has been supporting her out of his earnings for his exquisite flouncing.

However, if that be true, they may not have suffered more than Mr. and Mrs. John T. McCullough, of Parsonage Rd., Greenwich, Conn., and their eight-year-old boy, whose tuition in school this year is put in abeyance in the back of the book because Paul Draper brought down the glister of a lawsuit which already has cost them $9,000. If they go to trial, even though they should win, it will cost them about $35,000—all of it a lien on their equity in their home and on Mr. McCullough's future earnings.

Overtures have been made, but Mrs. McCullough has suffered so much for merely commenting on the political views of Draper and Adler that she refuses to compromise. She is determined to rub their noses in it.

Washington, Nov. 4 (AP)—Doctors fought to save the life of Evelyn Rios Bridoux today after the Bolivian pilot suffered a sharp relapse upon learning that the plane collision which injured him had killed 53 others. Attending physicians gave the battered young director of Bolivian aviation a 60-40 chance to pull through. He is in an Alexandria, Va., hospital with a broken spine, two broken ribs, head injuries and pneumonia.

All Ate Well

Santa Monica, Calif., Nov. 4 (AP)—Everyone, including the howlers, ate scrumptiously at the Howard Hawkses. That seemed clear yesterday as Superior Court ordered Hawks, the movie director, and his former wife, Nancy, to pay a grocer's bill of $3,399.44, covering one year. An almost daily item: Three pounds of hamburger for the Hawks' dogs.

Three Men Chosen For Loan Service

Three county men were elected directors of the Ulster National Farm Loan Association during its annual meeting Wednesday night at Clintonville. A turkey dinner served by the Clintonville Grange preceded the business meeting.

Those elected directors were C. Chester DuMont, Jr., of Ulster Park; Alfred Bedell, Walkkill, to serve three years; and Michael Monello, New Paltz, to serve a one year term.

Association officers and directors for the coming year include C. Chester DuMont, Jr., president; Alfred Bedell, vice-president; C. Kenneth Taber, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Marie Miller, assistant secretary-treasurer; Fred H. DuBois, Jr., Benjamin Van Wagenen and Michael Monello, directors.

C. Kenneth Taber, secretary-treasurer of the Association, reported that for the year July 1, 1948, to June 30, 1949, net earnings amounted to $1,792.51. From this amount, a four per cent dividend totaling $2,307.80 was paid to all stockholders on record as of June 30, 1949.

Taber also revealed that as of November 2 there were 262 members with Federal Land Bank mortgages in the amount of $593,762 outstanding in Ulster county. The associations net worth is $78,610.96 in which is included $39,660 worth of capital stock owned by the 262 county members, the report included. Short talks also were given by Benjamin Van Wagenen of Kingston, William Palmer, Ulster County Farm Bureau agent; and Myron C. Peabody, executive vice-president of the Federal Land Bank of Springfield.

Van Wagenen, a director, reported for the board of directors and stated that 34 applications for loans were received with 21 loans closed in the total amount of $69,487 for the year.

Palmer presented a brief talk on the agricultural economic outlook for the coming year as seen by economists at Cornell. He said that indications are for further declines in prices farmers receive for their products.

The Federal Land Bank representative gave an interesting talk on his recent trip across the country to a conference at Spokane, Wash. He described the large corn and grain crop being harvested in the west this year. He said that it took him two days to travel through the corn belt by car. He also told briefly of his visit to the Grand Coulee Dam project in Washington.

The Chicagoan arrived direct from Bangkok. He said he would be able to beat Colonel Egan's record of six days, three hours and 15 minutes for regular airline travel around the world.

O'Reilly, Inc. adjacent to the high school, M.J.M. property along Andrew street, had not yet been completed and until the city engineer completes this survey it will be impossible to draw a deed of conveyance. The board is ready to close the deal as soon as the survey is completed.

Permission was granted the Catholic Youth Organization to use the M.J.M. gym on Saturday mornings for supervised play. They sought it for basketball league purposes.

A communication was received from the Junior League thanking the board for use of the high school auditorium recently for a play.

The payroll and vouchers for October amounting to $152,232.21 and warrants in payment of the same on the farm training program payroll and vouchers, in the amount of $359.60, were audited.

In accordance with the education department regulation Trustees Fowler of the Rules Committee filed with the board a list of the non-resident pupils in the school system.

Trustee Morgan for the Insurance Committee reported insurance to the amount of $380,000 had been placed on the vocational school addition. This building's risk insurance was added to cover any loss during the period of construction. He also reported receipt of confirmation by letter of a prior statement from the carrier that insurance now carried to protect the city and school board from damages arising out of injuries which may be suffered on the M.J.M. playground fully covered the board.

Superintendent Laidlaw filed a report under the requirements of the Feinberg law, stating that the total number of employees of the board was 288 and that none of them was a member of the Communist party.

He reported the last figure of 462 pupils had now been exceeded and the program was growing rapidly.

Dewey's Luncheon

these plans are first steps toward a socialized state.

More than 300 members of Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs and their guests attended the luncheon. They gave the governor a long and enthusiastic ovation on his entrance to the dining room shortly after noon, and again at the conclusion of his speech, which was broadcast over Radio Station WKNY.

Harry Rigby, president of the Kiwanis Club, host club at the luncheon, presided. Governor Dewey was introduced by Senator Arthur H. Wicks, state Senate majority leader, who said he considers Dewey "one of the greatest governors this state ever had."

Those seated at the speaker's table were, in addition to the governor, Senator Wicks and Rigby, John T. Loughran, chief justice of the Court of Appeals, Mayor Oscar W. Newkirk, Charles Back, president of Rotary Club; Theodore R. Lee, president of Lions Club; Robert E. Toetsel, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Frederic Snyder, Justice Roscoe V. Edwards of the Supreme Court; Paul Bookwala, governor's secretary; James Bixby, district engineer of the State Department of Public Works; and Robert Case, president of the Central Businessmen's Association.

Conrad J. Hirschman, former mayor of this city, was introduced by Rigby as the man who "but for the war, would have presided at similar ceremonies seven years ago."

Informal, Forefront
More than 300 men filled to capacity the Crystal Room and the adjoining junior dining room. The hotel management reported that the luncheon was "a very successful affair" and that the guests were turned away for lack of room. Some ate in the hotel's office shop and heard the speech in the sun parlor, where a loudspeaker had been installed.

The governor spoke with an informal but forceful address which impressed those present. It was the first time a governor of this state had addressed a joint meeting of service clubs in Kingston, at least since 1917, said Senator Wicks, who has been a member of Rotary since that date.

Governor Dewey and his party, consisting of his secretary, New York newspapermen and stenographers, arrived outside the hotel about noon, coming with an escort of state and local police. The governor had left the Hotel Roosevelt in New York city at 9:15 a. m. and traveled here by automobile.

Had a Busy Day
Following the ground breaking ceremonies, Governor Dewey left for Monticello, where at 5 p. m. he addressed 1,200 persons at the Rialto Theatre for a rally sponsored by the Republican Committee.

He then had an informal dinner at Grossinger's resort hotel in the Catskills. His last appearance on that busy day was at Liberty, where a reception was held for him at the Hotel Lenape in Liberty. After the reception he motored to Binghamton, where he stayed the night at the Arlington Hotel.

Following is a summary of Governor Dewey's speech delivered at the Governor Clinton Hotel here Thursday noon:

"From here we are going to turn the first spade on the grade crossing elimination. Every time I look at one of these strips of concrete, I am utterly appalled at the cost. This project, about one-fifth of a mile in length, will cost about $800,000.

"One thing we are proud of in this state this year is the number of improvements we are making and the fact that every dollar spent for improvements is coming out of savings.

"I personally believe that's the way we ought to do it. Government ought to pay cash for its work, because each year it has a new project. Each year 1,000 miles of highway wears out, a hospital needs to be replaced, or a school."

Speaking of the so-called Battle of the Budget in Albany this year, the governor said it was solved and the budget kept within the moneys the state saved during the war.

"In 1941, the last pre-war year, it cost four cents per dollar out of the total income of the people of the state for taxes. This year, in spite of the fact we have cured many old injustices (here he gave examples of salary raises, bringing staffs at state institutions to full strength) and in spite of the great inflation, we are today taking in taxes three and one-quarter cents out of every dollar. On top of that, we are paying off a $400 million soldier bonus in 10 years."

Hits Socialism

Drawing on his experiences in his recent trip to Europe, Governor Dewey listed examples of conditions there which should serve as a warning to Americans not to allow socialism make great inroads.

One example was his visit to the mayor of Berlin, who told him "I am so glad you came to Berlin. Those thousands of people outside got an object lesson in what you are living evidence of what freedom means, because you lost an election and you are still alive."

The governor told those present here Thursday that "it takes a lot of courage to run for office in some European countries, because if a man loses, he would be dead in 24 hours."

He stated that we should learn lessons from what happened in those countries, and one of the lessons concerns deficit spending.

Deplores Deficit Spending
"One of the reasons I so terribly hate to see my country surrender in a period of prosperity to deficit spending is that the government is running into the red about five and one-half billion dollars (this fiscal year). That is one and one-half billion in addition and a half more than it cost to run the whole government of the United States 20 years ago. "This means it is going to stop and stop quick—or we are going to use printing press money and that means inflation.

"The minute that kind of borrowed money hits the market prices start a continued rise and wages never catch up. Then we have the nightmare of the chasing its tail.

"Who pays? The people on salaries, the people on pensions, the people who have set aside sums in insurance or bonds for retirement.

"Our first job as Americans, regardless of party, is to get our minds that we are going to wipe out deficit."

Glimpse in Farm Plan
Governor Dewey warned against two plans, the Brannan plan of farm price support, and the Compulsory Medical Insurance plan.

"The Brannan plan is the millennium. It promises high prices to agricultural producers and low prices to housewives. That sounds wonderful, but the plan has a gimmick. The gimmick is you have to pay in taxes the difference, plus the cost of a large army of government employees to administer it.

"Government is like a slot machine. You never get back 100 cents on the tax dollar."

He pointed out that the Brannan plan will probably cost a minimum of $3 or $10 billion. That is $300 a year, or at least $250 a year—$5 or $6 each week out of the take home pay of every employee.

"The same thing is true of compulsory medical insurance. If we're going to start spending, we're going to end up with doctors spending one-half of their time filling out forms and politicians taking care of patients."

Strikes Are Costly
Governor Dewey said that every American would like to see larger degrees of security, but "it is time to think in terms of whether we are going to destroy those things by failure to balance the budget."

Speaking of the coal and steel strikes, the governor stated that in New York state alone there have been 500,000 lost man-days of work, $5 million lost in wages, and 100,000 men out of work at the present time. The state has lost two million dollars in revenue, and this "will double each week the strike continues."

"It is imperative we develop policies to protect this nation from paralysis."

In concluding his talk, the governor stressed the de-centralization of power as a means of preventing the growth of a socialized state in this country.

"In our thinking in the future we must insist on one thing—that as the government takes over functions it does not take over the control of the people."

Road to Socialism
He said the Brannan plan would give "some third assistant secretary, whom we do not even know, the power to tell farmers what to grow, when to do it—in short, how to run his farm. This prepares the way for socialism."

While we all want the country to go forward and make progress in security measures, "be sure they are run locally, where your voice can fix it if it's no good.

As an example of government services de-centralized the governor used the state's aid to child mental health program. "We have a great program to fight juvenile delinquency in America, and we do it on a 50-50 basis. We give (local units) advice and help, and they run it in their own localities." That such a program can succeed is shown by the fact that in five years the program has been in effect, the state now has over 700 youth centers.

City Judge Mino

must be thankful, therefore, that we are so fortunate, and be aware of what we have.

Your City Court is a place where John Doe, if he has committed some crime within the court's jurisdiction, can rest assured that he will receive a fair trial and if convicted, receive a sentence tempered, not alone by the letter of the law, but by the extenuating circumstances. The City Judge is given broad discretionary powers concerning the imposition of a sentence in criminal matters. Unfortunately, at times, the facts demand a jail sentence, but many times I have found, in my experience, that merely to bring a person into court and face public censure is many times more punitive than assessing a large fine. The loss of reputation and the ill esteem of the public is the real punishment and frequently serves to bring the defendant to his senses. On the question of guilt, or a finding of guilt by a jury or the Court after a trial, it becomes the duty of the Court to pronounce sentence. It has the power to do a number of different things. The punishment should not only be appropriate to the offense, it should also be suited to the circumstances of the defendant. An ill considered, harsh sentence may create a great hardship; a too lenient one may lead to a complete moral breakdown. The city judge may suspend sentence when the circumstances warrant it, and if the sentence is suspended he may also place the convicted man on probation, and specify as part of the terms of that probation, that he perform certain proper acts. Placing a man on probation is often warranted when the circumstances of himself and his family are such that the immediate payment of a substantial fine or the imposition of a jail sentence will result in hardship to his innocent wife and children. Under our City Charter, we have a probation officer assigned to the Court whose duty it is to guide and assist the probationer so that he again does not transgress the law. I might add that our City is favored with a very understanding and conscientious probation officer, Benson Miller.

Your City Court is a place where Mr. and Mrs. John Doe can come to settle a domestic problem which has gone beyond all the other efforts for solution. I have been gratified to find that often a frank discussion with the parties in the privacy of my office has gone a long way towards a lasting solution. Some need only a stern reminder of their family duties and obligations to make them see a solution of their own. Others must be forced to meet their obligations of support or to stop habits of abusing members of their families with physical violence. Your court has adequate powers to correct these evils and I assure you that I do not hesitate to use them when less drastic solutions fail.

Your City Court is also a place where John Jones can bring an action in a civil matter involving less than $500. This feature has of a speedy handling of the matter, without the expense involved in bringing the same action in one of the higher courts. There are many other things which I could bring out about your City Court but while time permits, I would like to say that I have long thought that a city judge, besides performing his regular judicial duties, could do a further civic service by initiating, with other interested attorneys and individuals, a program of instructive talks and demonstrations designed to inform, in some details, our high school students of the operation and functions of our judicial system. A program of this type would supplement their regular courses and assure us that they will go on into their maturity with that much more awareness of their heritage. If I am elected as city judge, I promise you that I shall use my every effort to initiate such a program.

and carry it out to its successful conclusion. In conclusion let me say once more that while I have occupied the bench as your city judge, I have made every effort to maintain a high standard of efficiency in running your court which I know you deserve. I hope that my remarks tonight have shown you that I am fully aware of the great responsibilities of my position and have left you with an assurance that I will fulfill my duties and obligations to the best of my ability. I would like to take this opportunity to say that the time demands of my duties as city judge and of the present political campaign have not permitted me to see as many of you good people as I desired to. Nevertheless, I would appreciate your support and the support of all your friends on Election Day. I say to you that if elected, I shall fulfill the office of city judge of the City of Kingston to the best of my ability and that all decisions that I may make will be made by me after full consideration and will be made according to law and to the dictates of my own conscience.

Admitting such a development might come some day, engineers classify "smellovision" as "still scientifically unproven."

Quickly, Economically Installed
—no building alterations needed during installation
Eagle Insulation is blown into the attic floor with special pneumatic equipment. The job is done by specially trained workmen. There is no mess or fuss inside your home.
In hollow walls (wood, brick or stone veneer, or stucco), Eagle Insulation is quickly blown into place. You get benefit of a thick lining of insulation that is as efficient in shutting out summer heat and sealing in furnace warmth as a concrete wall 12-feet thick.
Lastingly effective because it is made of MINERAL WOOL
This wool is fused from carefully selected minerals—is filled with millions of tiny dead air cells which act as a barrier to the passage of heat and cold. Eagle Insulation is chemically and physically stable—retains its full comfort-bringing efficiency from year to year—pays for itself in fuel savings.
... because it is WATER REPELLENT
Eagle Insulation will retain its efficiency and remain a non-conductor of electricity. It will not "break down" in the presence of moisture nor settle in walls.
... because it is FIREPROOF
In walls and roof, Eagle Insulation forms a fire-retarding barrier. Many home-owners have had fire losses materially reduced simply because they had installed Eagle Insulation.
... because it is LIGHTWEIGHT
Eagle Insulation does not pick down in walls leaving uninsulated areas at the top through which heat and cold may pass freely. Tests show that Eagle Insulation is so remarkably lightweight that it does not settle—goes on giving full wall-high protection indefinitely.

Free estimate of how little it will cost to insulate your home this modern, lasting way.
